Nice to see growth in Sierra Leone, land where my parents were married while serving in the Peace Corps back in the 60s. I have been following the missionary activities of my California nephew in this country for a year now, where he started in the capital in two Freetown areas, and now is inland in Bo. They seem to teach a lot and baptize well.

The challenge of the unfinished task. The pride and attitude of superiority shown by the Krio “ Christian ” population, and the continued growth of Islam, have limited church growth in the tribal hinterland. Most outreach is to animists, even though

Muslims have shown responsiveness to the good news.
