The books are coming fast and furious these days. A recent addition to this literature of medical training is Intern: A Doctor's Initiation, cardiologist Sandeep Jauhar's story of his residency at New York Hospital, New York, NY, in the late 1990s. At first glance Intern appears to offer much of the usual fodder, like stories of a young physician's discomfort with breaking bad news, his attempts to coax a Do Not Resuscitate order from a reluctant family, and the anxiety over running a Code Blue.

This memoir flashes back to 10-15 years earlier when the author was casting about for a career, finally settling on medicine almost by default;

it follows him to medical school (at Washington University in St. Louis) and then centers on his first year of residency training at Cornell's New

Intern: A Doctor's Initiation

“Told of here is a time of travail and testing--a doctor's initiation into the trials of a demanding yet hauntingly affirming profession--all conveyed by a skilled, knowing writer whose words summon memories of his two great predecessors, Dr. Anton Chekhov and Dr. William Carlos Williams: a noble lineage to which this young doctor's mind, heart, and soul entitle him to

Sandeep Jauhar | Intern

The decision to become a doctor is huge and the transition to medical school and internship could have been mentioned but it is not. One moment he is a Physics Ph.D and the next he is an intern. He does not mention the transition to medical school at all and it seems like his new career was just handed to him.

“I always wanted to become a doctor,” he said, looking straight at me. “But I could not afford to go to medical school.” “I wanted to be a doctor, too,” my father said, pulling up on his fraying brown slacks so that the hair on his shins peeked out over his blue socks. Then he retold a story I had heard many times.
