The nonverbal aspects of communication have been basic to survival since time began. Even Charles Darwin was involved in the study of nonverbal communication. In 1899, he published "The Expression of Emotions in Man and Animal," in which he concluded that nonverbal communication was a primary "mode of delivery," and placed verbal communication as simply an extension of the nonverbal form.

It is important to be aware of what you are saying nonverbally. Even a brief moment of checking your email during someone's presentation conveys a nonverbal message. Styles of communication vary. An excellent article by Mark Murphy distills communication into 4 styles: analytical, intuitive, functional, and personal . Although no style is superior, effective communicators know how to recognize and match their communication style with their audience whether it be their boss, peers, direct ...
