Marxism, a body of doctrine developed by Karl Marx and, to a lesser extent, by Friedrich Engels in the mid-19th century. It originally consisted of three related ideas: a philosophical anthropology, a theory of history, and an economic and political program. There is also Marxism as it has been understood and practiced by the various socialist movements, particularly before 1914.

For Marx, history was not merely a succession of events - rather, he argued that underlying social forces moved history in certain directions. As such, he was intensely fascinated by the 'meaning' of history - and, on that basis, Marx presented a definite 'theory of history'. In this book, Cohen endeavours to explain that theory.

Karl Marxmaterialist conception of history. Marx's theory, which he called "historical materialism" or the "materialist conception of history" is based on Hegel's claim that history occurs through a dialectic, or clash, of opposing forces. Hegel was a philosophical idealist who believed that we live in a world of appearances, and true reality is an ideal.

Karl Marx drew inspiration from the 6 year industrial crisis in Europe 1848 - 1853. The Marxism theory developed against capitalism. He views history based on perpetual resolution of opposition (rich versus poor, developed versus undeveloped abundance versus scarcity) in which each resolution produces its own contradiction.
