He turned onto the street and headed in the direction of my house. His car slowed down, coasted, and finally stopped; but not at my house! He had pulled up to the curb that was located across from my house, and the driveway where he had pulled into hours earlier to pick me up for our date. Where he had knocked on the door and I greeted him after taking the time to make myself look nice. Although I didn't really feel any attraction for this guy, I was looking forward to us having a fun time. Now, hours later, we are in front of my home; but on the wrong side of the street. He is just dropping me off like a bag of potatoes, and I think I am in some stage of shock! Finally, after the blood came back to my brain, I turned and looked at him with total disbelief of the situation that was now happening. I wasn't sure what I was supposed to do or say. Finally, after getting all my emotions under control, I looked at him and managed to say, "Are you kidding me?" He did not speak nor look at me but just stared straight ahead holding on with both hands to the steering wheel. I'm sure my whole body was now in a state of utter shock and total confusion. Even though I wasn't certain of what the right thing was to say at that moment, I did know without a moment of doubt that I had to get out of the car. With as much sweetness as I could gather up at that moment, while still in my seat, I turned towards him, looked right at him, or at least to the side of his head since he still wouldn't look at me; and said, "Well you just have a nice afternoon."

Table for Two Table for Two is a humorous guide for older men and women who are not yet ready to give up on finding love. Its only real purpose is to share a laugh with its readers. It's been a long time since you've dated and you feel incredibly intimidated by the idea of dating. Ever since your last break up, you've felt as if you couldn't connect to anyone else. Believe it or not, there is someone out there for you, no matter how old you are. You could be in your 40's and still playing the dating game. Even seniors who are single will go out on dates although it's a bit rare.

ANATOMY OF COMMUNICATION reveals the fascinating details of how we use our minds, emotions, voices, eyes, facial muscles, body gestures, dress, life style in short, everything we are to send and receive hundreds of messages every day. We have evolved so many subtle techniques for exchanging messages that we are seldom aware of them. This book shows how a thorough knowledge of these techniques not only improves our ability to project our own ideas, feelings and intentions, but our skill at Interpreting and handling the messages beamed at us. ANATOMY OF COMMUNICATION shows you how to: compromise with a minimal amount of pain and maximum of success; use your outer self to convey your Inner self; open new avenues of communication, mend lines that have broken down, end cut off ones that only threaten disaster; disagree without being disagreeable; use body language to state or reinforce your meaning; put forth your own views in small groups; and cope with real one from the various types of people; plus scores of other practical ways to implement your day-to-day communication. Designed so that you can note your own experiences and reactions as you read, this exciting book also sets up sample simulations with which you can practice the suggestions offered throughout. Written with warmth and wit, it is a living example of the power of everything within its covers.
